21. General Architectural Description

This house in form resembles a classic cottage, but Queen Anne details have been added to the front porch, which is of recent construction. This single-family dwelling is located on the east side of Emery Street, between 616 Emery Street to the south and 624 Emery Street to the north. The building is surrounded by a planted grass yard with elaborate landscaping, and a chain-link fence encloses the backyard. The residence is set back approximately fifty feet from the street, and there is a wide grass strip separating the front sidewalk from the curb. Oriented to the west, the house rests on a combination of coursed sandstone and concrete foundations. Yellow-painted, horizontal wood siding with blue, one-by-four-inch cornerboards clads the exterior walls. Round-cut wood shingles fill the gable end of the porch roof and form a band around the octagonal gazebo above the entrance. Those in the gable ends are painted in bands of light blue and white. Gray asphalt shingles cover the moderately pitched, front-gabled roof, which extends over the full-width porch. A tall aluminum chimney emerges at the northwest corner of the structure. A blue-painted fascia board caps yellow-painted exposed rafters. Window types vary on all elevations. On the front elevation they are one-over-one, double-hung sash with white-painted frames and blue surrounds. The north elevation has one, four-over-four, double-hung sash; two, one-light awning; one, one-light casement; and one-one-over-one, double-hung sash with a fanlight above it. A pair of one-light awning windows beneath a large fanlight dominates the gable-end of the rear (west) elevation. The south elevation has bands one-light casement windows on both the first and second stories. Elaborately turned supports and balusters decorate the front porch, which culminates in a gazebo above the entrance on the south side of the asymmetrical façade. The house number appears in an octagonal frame on the gazebo. The front door is a three-panel, glass-in-wood-frame door with elaborate, white-painted wooden screen door. A pair of sliding, glass doors open onto a large wooden deck on the rear (west) elevation of the house. A one-light, glass-in-wood-frame door at the southeast corner of the house also provides access onto the deck.

A garage is located east of the house. Accessed from the alley behind the property, the garage is a rectangular structure measuring twenty feet north-south by twenty-four feet east-west. The garage is one story, has a concrete foundation, and is clad in yellow-painted, vertical wooden weatherboard with blue-painted, one-by-four-inch cornerboards. The hipped roof is covered in gray asphalt shingles and the rafters are exposed. Dominating the east (front) elevation is a white, aluminum, one-car, retractable garage door offset to the north. A sliding window with white-painted wooden frames and blue surrounds pierces the center of the west elevation. As well, a three-panel, one-light, glass-in-wood-frame door opens on the south side of the west elevation. The south elevation has two windows as described above.

29. Construction History (include description and dates of major additions, alterations, or demolitions):

This house has had several architectural styles applied to a core structure dating to 1878. Sanborn insurance maps indicate that the house remained relatively unchanged until 1918. From that time until 1920, the house evolved into a structure resembling a classic cottage by making significant additions to the rear (east) of the building and adding a full-width porch to the front. By 1979, the porch was enclosed and more additions were made to the rear of the structure. The present owners added the Queen-Anne-style front porch and rear deck. The garage was built before 1979, and replaced a smaller structure.

35. Historical Background

In 1868, John and William Hertha, brothers, came to Longmont from Illinois. John and his family settled on a homestead east of the settlement while the unmarried William mined at Glendale, Sunshine and Gold Hill. William purchased this lot on emery Street in 1878, but the house appears to have been built by his brother, Henry, who came to Longmont with their mother, Margaret in 1875. Henry Hertha was born in Illinois in 1856. A year after settling in Longmont, he sent for his sweetheart, Anna Smith. She was born in Winfield, Illinois on December 10, 1858. They married on May 21, 1876 in Boulder. Henry worked at the George Noble and Stephenson markets and operated a butcher shop in the 300 block of Main Street. Henry died in this house in 1935. Anna died a decade later, residing in this house a total of sixty-seven years.

From 1947 to 1957, the house belonged to Chester M. and Laura Paulson. Then Kenneth D. and Lois A. Hutchins purchased it. Kenneth was born on October 22, 1923 in Snowmass. He married Lois Heddles on July 30, 1946 in New Mexico. He was a veteran of World War II and worked as a carpenter for the University of Colorado. They sold the house in 1966 to Frank C. and Mary L. Newby who owned it until 1973. For the next six years Jay D. and Jane Bogner owned the house, apparently operating it as a rental unit. Robert H. and Lind McLaughlin have owned this property and resided here since 1979.

42. Statement of Significance

This property is significant for its association with residential development in Longmont, beginning in the late 1800's and extending through the first half of the twentieth century. In addition, the property is significant for its association with Henry Hertha, a St. Vrain Valley pioneer, and his family. Yet despite its great age, the house is not architecturally significant because of extensive alterations. The property's combined levels of historical significance and physical integrity are not to the extent that it would qualify for individual listing in the National Register of Historic Places. As well, because of a significant lack of historic integrity, this property should not be regarded as individually eligible to be designated as a City of Longmont landmark. But this property is a contributing resource within this National Register and local landmark district.

43. Assessment of historic physical integrity related to significance:

This residence displays a low degree of physical integrity, relative to the seven aspects of integrity defined by the National Park Service and the Colorado Historical Society: location, setting, design, materials, workmanship, feeling and association. There have been extensive additions and exterior alterations to the building subsequent to 1918.
